PUBLIC SCHOOLS

District International Programs (K-12)

The Florida Department of Education in cooperation with school districts around the State believe that strengthening the international character of Florida's public schools and providing students with the skills, competencies and opportunities necessary to deal effectively with an increasingly interdependent world, are important educational goals. In 1986, the Council of Chief State School Officers (CCSSO) reasserted the importance of the international dimensions of education suggesting that renewed global understanding will come only when we create an educational system that assures:

"an informed citizenry aware of the political, social, and environmental issues of the world; business leadership able to communicate across cultures and within an economically interdependent market place; and public sector leaders learned in languages, cultures, and economic-social systems who can serve the nation in world affairs."

In an effort to support this goal, the following programs and resources are being made available.
